To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.
IT having been reported that I should have said Dr. Lambert, of Narrellan, Camden, had not treated Peter Byrnes, who died of malignant scarletina correctly, I had been consulted on the case, therefore I beg leave to contradict such report, as it is my opinion Dr. Lambert's treatment was perfectly correct.

IMPORTANT TO PARTIES WEARING ARTIFICIAL TEETH.
MR. J. EMANUEL, Surgeon-Dentist, duly qualified, wishes to inform his patients and the public in general, that he has received from a friend, an eminent Dentist in Paris, an information relative to making the plates that artificial teeth are fixed on. It is an entire new system, thereby doing away with all irritation, so that persons with most tender gums can wear them with the utmost ease and comfort: by their peculiar method many hundreds of persons will now be able to use Artificial Teeth that could not possibly do so before.
N.B.—This discovery being only known to Mr. E. (in this City), he cautions the public against imposition.
Mr. Emanuel begs to remind the public, that as there is no decided cure for tooth-ache but the extraction of the tooth, instantaneous relief may be obtained by purchasing his Tincture, so universally known and approved of; sold in bottles with directions for use at 2s. 6d.; also, Soothing Syrup for Infants teething. Teeth and stumps extracted; teeth cleansed of tartar, and stopped with pure virgin gold. Artificial palates on Mr. E.'s own principle, approved of by the Faculty of this city.
At home from nine A.M. till six P.M.

SHIPS' MAILS.

Mails will be closed at the Post Office as follow:—

FOR LONDON.—By the Hamlet, this evening, at 6; and by the Catherine Jamieson, to-morrow evening, at six.

FOR ADELAIDE.—By the Emma, to-morrow evening, at six.

FOR AUCKLAND.—By the Louisa, to-morrow evening, at six.

The Maid of Erin has made a quick run of five days from Launceston. The ship General Hewitt, hence, arrived at Launceston on the 25th; and the barque Waverley, on the 27th ultimo. The barque Auriga from Manila the 27th October, arrived at Launceston on the 18th ultimo, and sailed again for Hobart Town on the 22nd.

The Thomas Henry is the Post Office Packet for October, and has made a better passage than the vessels carrying mails usually do, having completed it in one hundred and seventeen days. She reports having spoken, on the 31st October, in lat. 17·13 N., long. 25·49 W., the brig Olinda, sixteen days from Oporto, bound for Sydney.

The Winslow has returned to this port to refit for home. Since leaving Sydney, on the 27th April last, she has obtained only 74 barrels sperm oil, making a total of 670 barrels sperm and 400 barrels black oil, now on board, having been nearly thirty-four months out from New Bedford. She reports having spoken on the 25th December, the brig Tigress, Eury, of Sydney, six weeks out, clean; about the same time spoke the Rebecca Sims, Taber, clean, since leaving Sydney, and homeward bound; the Canton Packet, Sherman, with 150 barrels sperm oil since leaving this port; and on the 9th January, the barque Woodlark, Smith, of Sydney, fourteen days out, with 74 barrels sperm oil.

The William has made a quick passage of thirteen days from the islands. She reports the loss of the schooner Collcastle, of Sydney, at an island situated in lat. 18·10 S., long. 178·30 E., about the middle of September last, by striking on a reef during a heavy gale at night. There were five persons on board, and they immediately made for the boat, but from a heavy sea running, it instantly swamped. Captain Ellis, formerly of the American whaler Kingston, William Johnson, and another, were drowned; the other two succeeded in gaining the shore. The schooner Albion, Allen, of Sydney, was lying at the island of Nuckalau, when the William sailed, and as she had a cargo on board, she would follow the latter vessel for Sydney almost immediately after. The following information respecting the loss of another vessel was communicated to Captain Nagle by Captain Allen of the Albion:—"On the 3rd January, 1849, he was on shore at the island of Ongee (the south eastern island of the Fêjee Group) which is in lat 19·48, long. 178·30 E. On the beach were seven casks of bread, one cask of flour, and five casks of iron hoops, also the mizenmast of a ship, topmast, mizenyard, pieces of a round-house, and the top of a binnacle, of common deal, painted. The casks were branded "Folger, maker." Portions of a boat, with the name "United States," branded on a board, were also found; the planks were painted a dark lead colour. These things having been washed on shore during the 2nd and 3rd January, it was supposed that a vessel had struck on a reef about four miles distant from the island, during the night of the 29th December, and that it was the whaling ship United States, of Nantucket. All hands it was feared had perished.

The barque Emma sailed from Newcastle for Auckland on Thursday last. Passengers—Mr. S. Fulford, Mr. and Mrs. Scott and two daughters. Cargo—240 head of cattle, 3 horses, 118 bags maize, 4 bundles leather, S. Fulford; 10 horses, W. Nicholson; 7 horses, L. Foreman; 1 horse, T. Tully; 1 horse, W. H. Whyte; 1 horse, A. Scott; 16 cases preserved fruits, G. Townsend; 1 horse, 1 crate earthenware, 5 bags flour, Captain Knight.

The cargo of the Ann Mary consists of 62 bales wool, 4000 feet pine wood, 22 bundles sheepskins, and 1 cask tallow. The schooners Rose of Eden, Opalia, and Champion, hence, arrived at Moreton Bay on the 24th, and the Secret on the 28th ultimo. The emigrant ship Fortitude remained in quarantine under Moreton Island. The schooners Opalia, Rose of Eden, Helen, and Champion, were all loading at Brisbane, for Sydney.

The barque Petrel, from Sydney and Launceston, arrived at the Mauritius on the 12th November, and from thence would proceed to the Cape of Good Hope.

THE FORTITUDE.—This long expected vessel arrived in the Bay on Saturday last, after a tedious voyage of 123 days from Gravesend during the last twenty of which she has been coming from Bass's Straits. The emigrants, who have been placed under controul of the Government, and rationed by the contractor, consist of eighty-two male and seventy-seven female adults, and ninety-seven children under fourteen years of age: in all 256 souls. Up to the hour of going to press, we have not been able to obtain a list of the passengers who are not rationed by Government. There were eight deaths during the passage—(three adults and five children), and four births. The immigrants are forwarded under the exclusive auspices of Dr. Lang. On the Harbour Master going alongside the ship, he inquired if there was any sickness on board, and was informed that there was nothing infectious or contagious; he then boarded the vessel, and brought her report to Brisbane. Dr. Ballow, acting as Health Officer, proceeded to the Bay, together with the Customs officer, on Monday night; and his inquiries elicited the fact that two cases of typhus fever had occurred during the present month. A formal report of this circumstance having been made to the Police Magistrate, that officer very properly ordered the ship to be placed in quarantine, and obtained from Lieutenant Cameron a guard of six soldiers, who left Brisbane on Thursday in the Susan schooner, which vessel was engaged on behalf of the Government, for the purpose of conveying provisions, &c., to the immigrants. The people will be landed at Moreton Island, and tents for their accommodation have been sent down, to the extent of the means possessed by Captain Wickham, which are small enough, in all conscience. Fresh provisions, vegetables, melons, &c., have been forwarded for the use of the immigrants, and it is hoped that a few days' enjoyment of fresh air, accompanied by a wholesome change of diet, will eradicate all symptoms of disease from the passengers. Mr. Walker the Commissariat officer at Brisbane, and Mr. Watson, the Immigrant Agent, went down to the ship in the Susan; and the last named gentleman will take charge of the immigrants, in consequence of Mr. Richardson, to whom the vessel was consigned by Dr. Lang, having refused to act in the matter, excepting so far as regards the ship itself.—Moreton Bay Courier.

"Sworn to no Master, of no Sect am I."

MR. WENTWORTH'S LAST.

IT is just as we expected. That very choicest of human productions—the printed proposal of Mr. WENTWORTH, by which is kindly explained the principle upon which he will, if we please, insinuate his hand into all our pockets, to the tune of £60,000, was published in Thursday's Herald. Do not mistake, simple reader, it is not for Mr. WENTWORTH'S own good; oh, no.—PECKSNIFF forbid—that this delightful playing for all the pockets is proposed. Nor must you run away with the notion that the idea originated with him. Not at all. He is not a man of that kind. He is a person,—let his public acts bear witness, whose patriotic life is spent, like that of a Sir ISAAC NEWTON, in exalted and abstract speculations for human happiness and advancement, and whilst so employed, and after having been so employed for about seven years, as the member for Sydney, it suddenly occurs to twenty-three philosophers,—his Committee of ways and means,—that as they "entertain a deep sense of his eminent public services during the last twenty-five years," and are "desirous of obtaining for the colony (kind souls) the full benefit (GOD help us) of his talents in his present position as one of the members for Sydney, they have suggested (mark you, he was quite taken by surprise no doubt,) to that gentleman, the expediency of relieving himself from the large demands upon his time and attention, occasioned by his very extensive private concerns." And he, excellent patriot, ever ready (in conjunction with those delightful Co-Proprietors, whom the unphilosophic call mortgagees) to pocket £60,000 for the benefit of his beloved country, has consented to a plan—the plan—"for securing to that country the full benefit of the time and talents," which hitherto it seems we have enjoyed only in part. And thus it is, inquiring reader, that we are brought face to face with the proposition for buying up as it were, the fee simple of Mr. WILLIAM CHARLES WENTWORTH'S wonderful faculties. As the twenty-three philosophers are acting,—or at any rate profess to be acting for the whole colony, we, as a humble portion thereof, take leave to inspect the bargain so kindly and gratuitously offered to us, and to decide whether we think the article dear or cheap. In doing so we shall examine the proffered Patriot, as unceremoniously as we should examine a horse. When a Patriot consents to be trotted out, by no less than twenty-three chaunters of his perfections, as a valuable consideration for so amazing a price, we think ourselves entitled to walk round him at our leisure. And we shall do so.

Now if a horse were placed before a man for purchase, we apprehend that if the latter were conscious of any logical subdivision of the subject at all, he would address himself to it in this wise. First, he would be sure to satisfy himself whether the animal really was a horse at all, (or a mule, or even possibly an ingeniously disguised donkey?) And if a bonâ fide horse, whether such a horse as described? Secondly, If so, whether the price asked were reasonable? Thirdly, If reasonable, whether with reference to his, the intending purchaser's general circumstances, and permanent welfare, it would be expedient to pay that price; and, lastly, it is probable that the degree of attention the purchaser would bestow on these several questions, would in some sort be regulated by the manner, language, and apparent sincerity, of the persons describing and putting forward the animal. So shall we proceed. First we shall glance (it will be unnecessary to do more) at the legislative evidences of Mr. W. C. WENTWORTH'S "eminent public services;" and these we shall treat in such manner, as to dispose, by necessary implication, of all the other branches of enquiry.

"Eminent public services!!" Let us look at a few of the later ones. He brought in a Bill for reducng the rate of interest upon existing mortgages, the effect of which most monstrous Bill,—if it could have been passed into a law—would have been to compulsorily deprive all mortgagees of a considerable portion of the interest, which their mortgagors had previously solemnly covenanted to pay. In other words, it was a Bill to enable one class of persons to pick another class of persons pockets, by Act of Council. If this measure had passed into a law, the civilized world would justly have exclaimed, behold a pure specimen of Botany Bay legislation! No thanks to Mr. WENTWORTH that his bill did not pass into a law. He used his best endeavours to make it pass; although those endeavours were lame and foolish enough no doubt. Still it must be written in the history of this colony, that he did his best, (perhaps without knowing it, we could almost hope so,) to render his country infamous among nations. Here then is eminent public service number one. The next eminent public service of his that occurs to us, was his support of the pfanbriefe scheme, a delusive measure which the late Mr. WINDEYER brought forward, honestly satisfied, as we believe, that it was a sound and useful currency measure. As much, however, we fear, cannot be said for Mr. WENTWORTH. The pfanbriefe currency was to have been a paper one of course,—based on waste land,—and this currency was to have been a legal tender, at the rate of ten shillings an acre. The proposition was politically honest, or not, according to the belief of the party advocating it. Mr. WINDEYER, it is well known believed land was worth ten shillings an acre. Mr. WENTWORTH has frequently declared it is worth nothing at all, except some farthing sort of valuation for squatting purposes. Here then we have a politician, advocating "the eminent public service" to his country, of making his constituents and others accept as legal tender for an amount of ten shillings, an acre of land, not worth any thing at all, according to his own late squatting speeches!! And so much for eminent public service the second. Another and much later "eminent public service" was his attempt to revive transportation to this colony, as if the beginning, and middle, and end of his duty as a public man, was to take care of himself alone, as an employer of labour. In all these "eminent public services," or rather attempted "eminent private services," he was unsuccessful, and therefore we presume that Mr. W. C. WENTWORTH and his admirers are intent upon acquiring more leisure for accumulating these, —morally speaking,—inelegant and unattractive failures, or for becoming more successful in this style of eminent public services for the future. We shall not enlarge on his approbation of slaughter-houses in Sydney, amongst his own constituents. The reader must by this time assuredly cry enough of Mr. WILLIAM CHARLES WENTWORTH'S "eminent public services."

We conclude then, that the evidence altogether negatives that Mr. WENTWORTH is any other kind of patriot, than a most decisive and uncompromising breeches-pocket patriot. It follows from thence that we consider him decidedly dear at any price, and that we should never ourselves think of "suggesting"—to use the language of this funny committee—"to that gentleman the expediency of relieving himself from the large demands upon his time and attention, occasioned by his very extensive private concerns." On the contrary, we are profoundly convinced, that the more time and attention he bestows upon his very extensive private concerns, the better for himself, and the public to.

And now that we have done with his claims as a patriot, we confess to feeling not a little disgust that we should ever have been asked to pay money at all for the "time and attention" of any such public character. So transparent a pretext as this affected desire of pecuniarily acknowledging, and further securing these public services; a mercenary object so thinly veiled over with silly stuff that could not deceive a child, says little for the sagacity or common sense of either Mr. WENTWORTH or his committee. A thinking man of the world, a reflective, and earnest politician,—neither of which is Mr. WENTWORTH,—would never expose himself to the ridicule which must necessarily attach upon his thus seriously coming out in these wide-awake times, to catch birds by throwing salt upon their tails. The evident confidence he has in the gross gullibility of the common run of men, is so altogether in excess of what that gullibility, (great as it confessedly is) can warrant, that we cannot but feel conscious of a growing contempt for one, who, after so many years' experience in life, so blunderingly measures his fellow-men. It speaks volumes upon the nature of Mr. WENTWORTH'S intellect and public morality. Such men should, for their own sakes at least, be ingenuous and straightforward. But by a blessed and all-wise moral economy, above us, and pressing around us, such men never are so. They carry their own antidote. There never was, even in fiction, more than one human creature, IAGO, at once thoroughly wicked and thoroughly intellectual; and even he is more frequently regarded as a monster than as a man.

Fortunately Mr. WENTWORTH is far, very far, from being a man of this deep and unfathomable secretiveness of character, under the impenetrable cover of which, plots of any kind can be concealed until action. We see the hat going round in the announcement of his twenty-three eccentric admirers, as plainly as we behold the paper on which we are now writing. Noble rivalry in the fine art of begging. Bank of Australia fumbling at one of our pockets, Mr. WENTWORTH and his admirers at the other. Oh, for the laughing powers of old DEMOCRITUS. We shall next examine the real and substantial proposal of the admirers, upon its merits, and endeavour to ascertain, what amount of public gratitude may be due and owing to Mr. WENTWORTH, for this latest attempt at "publicly serving us,"——out.

IMPORTANT FROM INDIA.

NEWS from India to the end of October had been received at Hobart Town via the Mauritius, and we regret to state that it is of a very lamentable kind. There is now no doubt that we are engaged in a Punjaub war. General WHISH had been compelled to raise the siege of Mooltan, and had "taken a position to the westward of the town on the banks of the Chenab, and waiting the development of the Government plans with reference to the country at large." It appears that the siege had commenced, and there had been some very sharp work, as four officers and two hundred men were killed in carrying a position for the second parallel, but still it was clear that a few days must be sufficient to batter down the fort, when suddenly the Rajah SHERE SINGH with a large body of men and nine guns deserted to the enemy; not knowing how far disaffection might have spread among the native allies, the GENERAL thought it wise to secure himself in a strong position until reinforcements arrived. We have no room for extracts this morning.

* N.B.—In some places minutes appear of 'rain fallen,' without any entry of 'wind' attached: on such occasions it is to be understood that the wind from that quarter could not be considered the prevalent wind of the day or days on which the rain fell, (or of any other day in that month,) it being of but short duration compared with the wind from some other quarters.

EXPLANATIONS.

Elevation.—240 feet above mean tide level.

The External Thermometer is in a southern exposure five feet above the ground, placed against a wall in a small open screen of wood, which protects it from direct or indirect radiation, humidity, &c., and at the same time admits a free circulation of air.

Wet Thermometer.—This observation is obtained by evaporation on the bulb of the instrument, which is moistened pro tem.; and the extreme of depression after evaporation is registered; the difference between the wet and dry thermometers indicating the condition of the atmosphere as respects humidity.

The Rain Guage is cylindrical, ten inches diameter, having a funnel lid, with sides two inches deep, then decreasing to a tubular hole of half an inch diameter, to drevent as much as possible evaporation and other decrease or extraneous augmentation; it is placed on the ground in a perfectly open situation.

IDLERS, DISORDERLIES, AND INDECENCY.—Two females were on Saturday sent to Sydney Gaol for a month each, under the provisions of the Vagrant Act, for idle and disorderly conduct; and a man for indecency was sentenced to pay a fine of £5 and 2s. 6d. cost, or the alternative, which was in effect the award, as the former part of it was impossible, forty-two days imprisonment. The punishment was richly deserved.

SYDNEY YACHT CLUB RACES.

Two races, of first and second class yachts owned by members of the club, came off, as announced, on Saturday last, and excited some interest. The police schooner Satellite having been moored off Fort Macquarie as flag vessel, from her the starting gun was fired, shortly after one o'clock.

FIRST MATCH.

For first-class yachts,—to start from off Fort Macquarie, proceeding round the boat moored off the Gas Works, passing it on the east and rounding it on the west side, then round Shark Island, passing it on the north, and rounding on the south side; back again round the starting vessel, passing it on the south and rounding on the north side; then proceed round a boat moored off Big Manly Beach in North Harbour, passing it on the west and rounding it on the east side, back to the starting vessel. Prize, a silver challenge cup, valued at fifty-two guineas.

Pearl ....Messrs Want and Challis
Sylph ....Mr. Owen
Phantom ......Mr. Todd.

The Phantom took the lead in starting, but was soon overhauled by the Sylph and Pearl. In rounding the boat off the Gas Works, the Sylph took the lead, but was passed almost immediately after by the Pearl. On returning from Shark Island to the flag-ship, it became apparent the Pearl would take the race, as she was about three minutes in advance of the Sylph, and four and a half of the Phantom. They maintained about the same relative positions until rounding Bradley's Head, on their way to Big Manley Beach, when the Phantom overhauled the Sylph, and would have stood a good chance of becoming first in the race, had she been properly worked. The Pearl returned to the flag vessel three minutes in advance of the Phantom, and seven minutes in advance of the Sylph. The latter boat was steered by Mr. Dyball, the Phantom by Mr. Durham Nicholson, and the Pearl by Mr. G. Mulhall. Bets to a large amount, we believe, had been taken on the Phantom winning the cup, as hitherto she has carried off every prize she has competed for.

SECOND MATCH.

For second class yachts, to start from off Fort Macquarie round a boat off the Gas Works, passing it on the east and rounding it on the west side, then round Shark Island, passing it on the north and rounding on the south side, back again round the starting vessel, passing it on the south and rounding on the north side, then proceed round the Sow and Pigs, passing them on the west and rounding on the east side, back to the starting vessel. Prize, a silver challenge cup, valued at twenty-two guineas.

Midge .. ..Captain Towns
Jenny Lind ....Captain Hindson
Little Johnstone ..Captain Harrison
Lynx ....Mr. Longmore.

This could scarcely be termed a race, owing to the Midge having so much the advantage of the other three boats. An opinion may be formed of the competition by our stating that the Midge came in first by twenty-five minutes in advance of the Jenny Lind,—the other boats not showing round Bradley's Head at the time.

ABSTRACT OF SALES BY AUCTION, THIS DAY.

MR. MORT.—On the Premises, (the residence of C. St. Julian, Insolvent), Surry Hills, opposite Mrs. Iredale's, at 11 o'clock, Household Furniture, Watch, &c.

POLICE OFFICE.—The business lists were on Saturday, as usually on that day, light. There were four charges on the drunkards' list, one on the vagrant, one on the convict, and ten on the tree. The only case that possessed the slightest degree of public interest was the one of the forged notes, and three for stealing, but which latter were only partly proceeded with, as the whole of the requisite witnesses were not in attendance. The magistrates present were Captain Innes, Alderman Allen, the Mayor, Alderman Egan, and Mr. Miles, the two latter gentlemen sitting in the private room, a course which was necessary in the charges before them. Alderman Allen and Mr. Botts were the magistrates on the roster for the day, but as it will be seen only the former attended his appointment. Aldermen Egan and Fisher are the Magistrates for to-day.

SCOTS CHURCH.—The Colonial Committee of the General Assembly of the Established Church of Scotland have unanimously resolved to recommend the Rev. James Coutts, a Licentiate of the Church of Scotland, (of whose character and qualifications for this important charge the Committee have fully satisfied themselves) for the appointment of Minister for St. Andrew's Scots Church, Parramatta, New South Wales. Earl Grey has allowed £150 for outfit, and the Committee have agreed to allow Mr. Coutts, for two years, an annual sum of fifty pounds, in addition to any aid he may obtain from Government, or otherwise.

A WINDFALL.—By the late arrivals the friends of Dr. Lang have received information of his having succeeded to the proprietorship of a valuable farm of three hundred acres in Stirlingshire, which cannot be worth less than £3000. Two persons who stood between Dr. L. and this property died within a fortnight. As this property has reached Dr. Lang by descent, we presume it is entailed, and will descend to his children.

COLONIZATION.—The following announcements appear in the English journals:—"Dissenters' Mutual Friendly Colonizing Society for aiding the emigration of respectable families to, and promoting colonization and the formation of distinct but neighbouring settlements in Australia, upon a plan embodying the New Testament principles, to the exclusion of those of an anti-Christian tendency;—thus rendering the spread of evangelical truth in the antipodes the natural consequence of systematic Christian colonization. The Society's list is open to receive the names of intending emigrants (and their families.) All candidates for membership must be men of Christian principles; to such, the Society's plan secures many great and peculiar advantages."—"Australian Emigration Mutual Aid Society.—Established for the purpose of affording assistance to persons of good moral character, desirous of emigrating, but who have not the means; and at the same time, realise to shareholders a fair remuneration for the investment of capital. To secure these objects, the following mode of operations will be pursued:—Supposing the Society to consist of 1000 members, paying ten shillings per month, it would produce one thousand pounds every two months. This amount, at the present upset price of land,—one pound per acre,—would secure 1000 acres, to be divided into twenty allotments, of fifty acres each. With the second thousand pounds, it is intended to send out persons capable of cultivating the land, at an annual rental of £5, payable to an agent, accredited by the society; such lessee, or tenant, to be nominated by a shareholder, and to be entitled to a free passage for himself and two other adult persons; and at the expiration of ten years to have the right of purchase upon equitable terms."

A SHAM.—In our last parcel from London we received a pamphlet on emigration, by William Carpenter, which we find upon perusal to have been written and published some seven or eight years since, and which not being saleable, has doubtless remained on the booksellers' shelves until the present time, when the interest excited respecting immigration has suggested that a sale might be effected. In order to deceive the unwary, a few advertisements of a recent date have been printed and appended to the pamphlet, so that an uneducated person would be very easily misled. In the book itself there is nothing calling for particular remark, except that it is rather "puffy" when speaking of South Australia.

WOOL.—The handwashed wool which realized 13½d. per lb. at Mr. Mort's sale on Thursday, was washed by Mr. R. Lord, at the Botany Wool Washing Establishment, being the highest price of any wool sold this season.

COURT OF REQUESTS.—This court will commence its sittings this morning at 10 o'clock, with a list of 269 cases. The new sittings will be held on the 12th instant, for which there are thirty-three cases set down for trial.

WAGES.—We are informed that the number of immigrants who have arrived within the last six months have had no effect upon wages in the interior; and that in some districts the rates are actually increasing. In the New England district shepherds who have been receiving £20 and £21 refuse to re-engage at less than £24 and £25 a year—rates which the present price of wool renders it utterly impossible the settlers can pay. Notwithstanding this continued demand for labour in the interior, there are said to be hundreds of men in Sydney out of employ, who prefer loitering about the city and earning a precarious subsistence by casual work, to proceeding to the interior, where they would be sure of continuous work, at fair, indeed at present, very high wages.

FOUND NOTES.—This case was on Saturday brought to a conclusion by the committal of the man George Iverson for trial. The remand from the previous day had been made in consequence of a divarication prevailing in the testimony of some witnesses, as to the night on which the note was passed at Newland's public-house. This, however, was fully cleared up, and by the re-examination of one of the witnesses an incident came out which tended somewhat to strengthen the identity of the prisoner. On a question being put respecting the dress he then wore, a rather peculiar blue cap was stated to be one of the articles of his attire. Although Iverson had been three times before the Court, he had never worn or had in his hand, such an article, but on his enquiry being made, a constable drew forth from bewteen his jacket and waistcoat, the one alluded to, which it would seem he had always on previous occasions, when brought into the court house, placed where it was found, until he was clear of it again.

STREET OUTRAGE AND ROBBERY.—About half-past 10 o'clock on Saturday night, as constable Hughes was conveying a drunken man along Bathurst-street, to the watch-house, he was suddenly surrounded by a mob of about fifty persons, who attacked him for the purpose of rescuing his prisoner. At this moment Mr. Michael Golden, the City Building Surveyor, happening to be passing, went to the constables assistance, when the mob who had previously been maltreating Hughes turned on him. Mr. G. was immediately knocked to the ground by several blows, and most severely kicked on the face and body, and a gold watch stolen from his pocket.

CITY PROPERTIES.—Mr. Samuel Lyons will sell by auction, this day, at his mart, at eleven o'clock, a building allotment, near Woolloomooloo Bay, and a cottage situate at Chippendale, with garden, &c.—Communicated.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

(From our Correspondent.)

WINDSOR.

POLICE OFFICE, JANUARY 27.

COMPLAINT AGAINST A CONSTABLE.—Magistrates present—R. Fitzgerald, Esq., W. Bowman, M.C., J. L. Scarvill, Esq, and J Panton, Esq. Constable Campbell appeared to answer the complaint of Mrs. Anne Alwood, for ill-treating whilst conveying her a prisoner to Parramatta Gaol:—Dr. Bell deposed, that complainant had been a patient of his at the time in question, and was not in a fit state of health to bear much mental or bodily fatigue. Several other witnesses proved that Campbell would not allow her a drink of water on the road, and threatened to tie her to the back of the dray if she would not walk on. The Bench dismissed Campbell from the police force, and censured his conduct in very strong terms. I may here remark that Mrs. Alwood was sent to Parramatta Gaol in consequence of not paying a fine inflicted on her for hawking goods, and for which her mother holds a license; but as the old woman was laid up at the time with an ulcerated leg, she went in her place selling goods at Wilberforce, &c., when the constables came on her, and an information was the consequence. Mr. Panton, who was the presiding magistrate on this occasion, inflicted the lowest penalty the law allowed, namely, £5, or seven days to Parramatta Gaol, which latter Mrs. Alwood preferred.

THE CORONER AND CONSTABLES.—Dr. Dowe exhibited an affidavit to their Worships, complaining that in consequence of the negligence of constable Phillips, of Pitt Town, he was prevented from holding an inquest on the body of a child at Colo, on the preceding Wednesday or Thursday. The Bench appointed that day week for hearing the case, and giving Phillips time to procure the evidence of some witnesses material for his defence. The Coroner said he intended to make a general complaint against the police force for inattention to orders, &c.

MAGISTERIAL INQUIRY.—The magistrates were occupied for a considerable time inquiring into circumstances touching the death of a female child, aged ten days, at Colo, on Tuesday or Wednesday last. A Mrs. Shaw deposed that she was attending on Mrs. Wood, the mother of the child, during her confinement, in conjunction with a Mrs. Huxley, a midwife; that after a day or two the midwife left, and she then had sole charge of both mother and child; that the latter was seized about the eighth day with a bowel complaint, and that she then took the child across the river to where the midwife lived for her advice, as she considered Mrs. Huxley a "skilled woman." On the tenth day the child died, and in a few hours after death was buried under a fig-tree in the garden. The Coroner cross-examined this witness with a view to show that proper care and attention had not been manifested by the mother during the illness of the child, and stated he had been informed that some other children belonging to these people (Woods) had died under somewhat similar circumstances. After the examination of one or two more witnesses, the Bench determined on sending the depositions to the Attorney-General for his advice in the matter.

MASONIC.—The Windsor Social Lodge has at length, after a lapse of four years, been reopened, under what may be considered favourable auspices, and we have no doubt after a short time it will number many of the respectable and influential men of our town and district among its members.

THE WEATHER.—For the last week the weather has been intensely warm, and great injury has followed to the maize crop; indeed, in many upland places, the farmers have cut it down for their stock, so that except for the lagoon and other marshy lands about our river, there will be but a sorry harvest. As for feed for cattle there is none, every place being so burned up, and the consequence is that both hay and corn have risen considerably.

WINDSOR RACES.—I believe it is in contemplation by the committee of the Hawkesbury Turf Club, to solicit some leading men to become stewards of the next races in April. Mr. Fitzgerald, and Mr. W. Bowman, M.C., have spoken of with some others, whose names would carry great weight and interest with them. This certainly is a duty the Club would do well to carry if possible into effect, as it will no doubt give an air of respectability to the management of the races that has been long wanting. The programme, which will shortly appear, contains many alterations, and I have no doubt will give general satisfaction, and reflects much credit on the secretary for his tact and discernment.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE EXTRACTS

GREAT MEETING OF THE KAFIR CHIEFS AND HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR,

ON THE 7TH OCTOBER, AT KING WILLIAM'S TOWN.

(From the Graham's Town Journal.)

SATURDAY, 7th October, was the day appointed by the Governor to meet the Chiefs of the Fingo tribe and Gaika Tribes. The morning was fine, and until noon the Kafirs kept coming into King William's Town from various directions. The hour appointed by his Excellency for the Kafirs to congregate was twelve o'clock, and precisely at that hour they assembled on the parade ground. The number of Kafirs present were computed at one thousand men. The following

H'LAMBIE CHIEFS.

Umbala	Pato	Toice	Geylo
Nonebi	Sewani	Kosani

And a few Councillors.

They formed a large circle, all the chiefs sitting in the centre. The band of the Rifle Brigade struck up "God save the Queen," when the Governor and suite walked up in the following order:—

W. Shepstone, Esq., Interpreter to the High Commissioner
The Lord Bishop—the Governor, Colonel Mackinnon.
Major Garvock, Brigade Major Bisset.
Lieutenant Holditch.
Four mounted orderlies.

The Governor was received by the chiefs and people all standing. After a moment's pause he desired them to sit down, and the meeting commenced, by the Governor addressing them in substance in the following words:—

The Governor: Chiefs and my children!—Right glad am I to meet you this day, and to hear that there are no complaints against you since I was here before. Kreli would have been here to-day, but he was so far off that he could not get here in time. As I told you before, when I last met you, the Queen of England sent me, as your old friend, to bring you out of the "bush." You were then naked, and in a state of the greatest destitution, living on roots, and in a state of starvation. All that I said at that meeting has been confirmed by the Queen of England, and will for ever stand unaltered. The Queen has sent me this paper.

His Excellency here held up a scroll of paper which he had in his hand, and then threw it on the ground.

"There" exclaimed His Excellency, "lies the law of the land—never to be altered—no change."

Here is the stick which will carry it out—I have soldiers to enforce it. I have never used soldiers yet, but I will if it be necessary. My brother, Colonel Mackinnon, are you perfectly satisfied with the Commissioners?

Colonel Mackinnon: I am perfectly satisfied with the conduct of the Commissioners; every one of them have done their duty in the most efficient manner, in carrying out my views, and the instructions of your Excellency.

[The Governor here called upon the Commissioners, and inquired whether they had any complaints to make against the Chiefs, that he might know whom he was to censure and whom he was to applaud. He called upon W. M. D. Fynn, Commissioner for Kreli.]

W. M. D. Fynn: Chiefs, I have no complaints to make against Kreli; he has rendered me every assistance to support my authority. Four days ago I informed Kreli that His Excellency invited Kreli to meet him at King William's Town. Kreli replied, "Well I have often been called by the Governors, and always been afraid to go; but I am not afraid to go to Smith. Smith calls me, I go,—and day and night will I travel, lame as I am, to see him, and this will be the first time in my life that I met a great Governor."

The Governor then called upon Mr. Charles Brownlee, Commissioner for the Gaikas, to know whether he had any complaints to make.

Mr. Brownlee: I beg to express my thanks to Sonto for his good conduct, in having so promptly delivered up to justice a Kafir concerned in the murder of the late Ingram. I wish also to express my entire satisfaction at Sonto's conduct, as I have never been under the necessity of ever calling upon Sonto to make any compensation for horses or cattle—none ever having been traced to his location since the time of my appointment. I beg to bring to your Excellency's notice the praiseworthy conduct of the widows of Tialie, in the readiness they have ever manifested to comply with the orders of Government, and in having on two occasions, without any directions from the authorities, followed the traces of cattle stolen from the colony, apprehending the thieves, and rendering compensation for the theft. Cases of theft have been repeatedly traced to Macomo's and Botman's tribes—compensation has been obtained in all, and in three cases the thieves have been given up to the colonial authorities to be punished. Altogether the conduct of the chiefs has been satisfactory in the highest degree, and they exerted themselves to the utmost in the suppression of theft. In the month of August, when your Excellency was across the Orange River I called a meeting of the chiefs of my district, and informed them that this was their time to show their loyalty to the government, and pointed out to them the necessity of vigilance in the suppression of depredations; and it has been clearly proved, by the reduction of depredations during the last month, that the Kafirs have taken no advantage—either of the High Commissioner's absence, or the reduction of the force on the frontier.

Captain Maclean: I have every reason to be well satisfied with the chiefs of the H'lambie district. The depredation reports show clearly how few robberies have been committed on this flank of Albany. I have to thank the chiefs for the support they have given me. They have rendered me every assistance in support of my authority, and have done justice to claimants without reference to me. I beg particularly to bring to your Excellency's notice the conduct of the Chief Umbala, Toyce and Seyolo. They apprehended many thieves, and gave them up to justice. It is unnecessary for me to advert to particular cases, but they have recovered many horses and cattle stolen from the colony, the loss of which was never reported, or any spoor traced. I have no reason to believe that the other chiefs would not have acted in the same manner, as I feel confident that nothing has occurred in H'lambie location which has not yet been noticed. I beg also to bring to your Excellency's notice that I have conducted and carried out the Government measures solely by the aid of the "Umsela," your Excellency's stick, and in no instance have I been obliged to call for a military force.

The Governor: What have you to say, Sandilli?

Sandilli then called upon Macomo.

The Governor—I called upon you, Sandilli, and not upon Macomo.

[Sandilli being seated in the centre of the circle at this time, quietly enjoying his pipe, with the greatest coolness possible handed it over his shoulder to one of his councillors, and then rose to address His Excellency.

Sandilli: I have nothing to say. We rejoice to see your Excellency safe back again. We congratulate you on your success. We all rejoice. I am sorry that our congratulation is not complete. Kreli is not here, and I should like, as with one voice, that the whole of Kaffirland should congratulate your Excellency.

Umhala then rose: I beg that your Excellency will wait for Kreli, as we wish to wait for Kreli, Kreli has been before to King William's Town, and only found the spoor of your Excellency. Shall he again come and find the Great Chief gone, and shall his heart once more be made sad by disappointment?

The Governor: I should like to see Kreli; I will wait as long as I can, but I must leave to be present at a Council at Cape Town. Here is Kreli's mouth (pointing to Mr. Fynn), and you have already heard what he has said. Kreli knew that he had done wrong during the war. He sent to all the Missionaries to pray that he might receive forgiveness. He has already given many cattle to make restitution for the property destroyed at Butterworth, and he still intends to send more. He is a man, who has only now to listen to the Missionaries to know the way to become a true Christian.

Botman and Nonebi then rose and addressed his Excellency, congratulating him on his safe return. They had nothing to say, but wished to hear the news from him,

EGO: Speak out, if you have anything to say. Why do you not speak? You say you wish to congratulate the Great Chief, and yet you wish to wait for Kreli? Where will you find him? When he comes the Great Chief will be gone, and how can you speak when he is on the water?

The Governor: Last February I went across the Orange River. There is a large country there, which is filled with black people, rich in cattle. The Boers got amongst them. Boers and black people could not live without fighting. I then established laws, that the black man should not kill the white, nor the white man the black. The Boers thanked me, as did also the black man. But one bad man got amongst them, and caused the Boers to rebel. Moshesh would have come down upon them, but I would not allow him. I took the Queen's soldiers, and the Boers got amongst the rocks and bushes, and tried particularly to kill me. But all those that try to do good, God preserves them, but the devil will have those that do evil. I marched the troops forward, and in less than an hour and a half there were fifty-five dead in the field, and one hundred and seventy wounded, besides capturing nearly one-half their horses. You know the Boers dismount to fight, and I was in amongst them before they had time to mount their horses. You all know how I fight. You know how far the Orange River is. I was over there the other day, and you see I am now here; and I am ready to fight there (pointing in the direction of the Kve) to-morrow if necessary. Here is the Lord Bishop from Cape Town, who rode ninety miles yesterday on purpose to be at this meeting. If Kreli had done the same he would have been here to-day. He has been sent out by the good people of England to teach you the religion of the Queen of England. This is the man that teaches me the way to salvation, and has come to see what he can do for you in teaching you the way to be Christians. This is the Great Chief of Teachers, yet still regards the smallest child and the meanest man, who is good, and is a Christian, with the same regard as the "Inkosi Inkulu." He wishes to establish schools for the education of your children. Can none of you assist in any way? Can none give a calf, or a little corn? Shall your daughters go about naked, and lie about in idleness in the bushes like calves?

Have you nothing to say?—You who have been in England, seen the great world there, and you saw that no man there eats the bread of idleness? and yet, fool! you dare to join with the Kaffirs against the power of the Queen. Have you anything to say to the Lord Bishop for the furtherance of education among your countrymen?

Jan Tzatzoe: The Lord Bishop is a great and wise man; and the Great Chief has already remarked that I am a fool. How, therefore, can I give any advice upon this subject? But we certainly require teaching to remove our ignorance. The Lord Bishop will best know how to accomplish this.

The Governor: The Lord Bishop wishes to speak a few words.

The Lord Bishop: Chieftains! I am glad to meet you all here this day. As the Great Chief has just told you, I rode yesterday all the way from Graham's Town, that I might be present at this meeting, of which I only heard the day before. I am, as you have been told, the Bishop of the English Church in this part of the world—of that Church to which our Queen belongs, and I wish now to assure you of the interest—the deep interest—which I take in you and your condition, and to tell you of my earnest desire to do you any good in my power. The Great Chief has talked to you about the education of your children. I am ready to assist you in this good work, for I feel that by education your own peace and happiness will be greatly promoted. I am also most anxious to send amongst you Ministers of God, who may teach you the way of life, and bring you to the knowledge of the true God, and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent. Be assured, that the best way to promote your own happiness in this world, and in that which is to come, is by becoming Christians,—by receiving as your Lord and your God that blessed Saviour in whom we, who are Christains, place all our trust and all our hope. And now I will not keep you any longer; but, I repeat, I shall be glad to do you any good, and I hope you will tell me how I can do it.

The Governor: I now take leave of you. Before leaving, I again give over my staff of office to my brother, Colonel Mackinnon. There will be another meeting on the 7th of January. I will come if I can. Each Chief must then bring an ox, as a token of submission, and an acknowledgment for the lands you hold from the Queen, and Colonel Mackinnon shall give presents to the Chiefs according to their merits.

The Governor here handed his staff of office to Colonel Mackinnon, and bade them farewell.

The whole of the Chiefs and the people then rose, uncovered their heads, and, as with one voice, shouted "Farewell Great Chief." The band of the Rifle Brigade struck up the National Anthem, and the Kafirs dispersed.

THE GOVERNOR AT CALEDON.

(From the Government Gazette.)

SMITHFIELD, CALEDON RIVER, 18th September, 1848.—His Excellency the Governor having concluded his arrangements in Winburg and Bloem Fontein, proceeded from the latter place on the 16th instant to the District of Caledon River: and having arrived at Smithfield, the seat of magistracy, on the morning of the 18th, received an address signed by 340 of the inhabitants, to which he made a suitable reply. His Excellency held a meeting at 11 o'clock the same day, to attend at which nearly 400 burghers had assembled.

The Governor informed the meeting that he had called them together under their magistrate, Thomas Vowe, Esq., and their Field-Commandant Sneyman, to explain to them what had taken place, and what he had done since the breaking out of the late rebellion.

The Proclamation of the 2nd September was then read by His Excellency's direction; after which that of the 7th September issued at Winburg; and, finally, the Minutes of the proceedings of the meeting held at the latter place on the 9th instant.

On the portions of these documents being read, which allude to the Manifesto of the 29th March last, and to the War Tribute, His Excellency reminded the meeting that the provisions of the former had been fully carried out; and with respect to the latter, assured them in very forcible terms, that the Colonial Treasury should not defray the expenses attending the suppression of the rebellion; that it was not fair or just that the peaceably disposed persons in the "Sovereignty" should bear them; and that, therefore, the actors and aiders in the outbreak should be made to pay.—His Excellency then said:—

Gentlemen of Caledon River.—You have now heard what I have done in the other districts; you know that I have established a strong post in the "Sovereignty," and that should there unfortunately at any time be a recurrence of war, you will be able to assemble at Bloem Fontein, and there be certain of support. You must remember that you hold your lands on the tenure of burgher service, in the same manner as property is held in the colony. I wish, however, for no more war; I shudder at the very thought of it; but you see that I am able to bring troops over the Orange River without delay, and if I thought it necessary, I would be again myself quickly among you, and go even to Origstadt,—if, in order to secure peace, I should find it imperative to do so. But from the rigorous measures I have pursued, and the examples I have made, I am induced to hope,—indeed, I feel assured,—that there will be no more war.

I contemplated hereafter giving you "Heemraden," two in each division, to be chosen by the people, so that the magistrate would then stand in like position with regard to them, as the Governor does to his Council at Cape Town. I do not, however, say that I will do this immediately. I must first see that you are come to the resolution to remain content and quiet, and I may then be induced to give you this government, more liberal in its nature than that possessed by any people.

The rebel Pretorius talked of bringing black men upon my troops. You are no doubt aware, that, had I said the word, the whole of the natives were ready to rush upon the rebels; but my heart is not like that of the villain Pretorius; I never harboured the thought of bringing them upon the Boers, and thereby causing a tragedy painful in the extreme.

"Smithfield" was well defended, instead of being deserted, in time of danger; and it shall therefore remain the seat of magistracy.

The commissioners must now set to work to collect the war tax. The property of prosecuted rebels shall be all confiscated; and those who took a leading part in the rebellion shall be deprived of half of their... Others will be fined by the commissioners to their deserts, as I have set them.

There are many ... according to my proclamation. Districts ... and well disposed men in this ... you will of course be most anxious to have churches and schools

Thomas Vowe, Esq., Magistrate of the district of Caledon, here handed to his Excellency a list of subscriptions for the erection of a church at Smithfield, amounting to nearly 4000 Rixdollars.

His Excellency said—

I have great satisfaction in seeing this list; and I propose to lay the foundation stone of the church this afternoon.

I have only now to say, that my heart is with you; and I shall be happy to hear any man speak who may wish to do so.

[Field Commandant Sneyman here said, that he felt grateful to Mr. Erwee for having, in his name, at the meeting at Winberg, answered for the loyalty of 400 men; but he here begged to observe, that that was much below the number; for that he could answer for 800 well disposed men in the district of Caledon River. Mr. Sneyman also presented a memorial, signed by 336 farmers, praying that a separate Land Commission might be at once formed for the district of Caledon, in order to prevent any delay taking place in defining the limits of the farms, and issuing land certificates. His Excellency expressed his satisfaction at the tenor of this memorial, assured the burghers that he fully participated in their anxiety on the subject, and that he would take immediate steps to appoint a separate Commission.

The meeting then broke up, the Governor saying—

This day, gentlemen, is wet and unfavourable in some respects; but it will be long remembered as one on which I came among you to benefit you, if it lies in my power to do so. My heart is with all good men like yourselves; but my hand shall be against every rebel.

In the afternoon his Excellency proceeded, accompanied by about 100 burghers, to a spot not far from Smithfield, where he laid the foundation stone of the church, under the auspices of the following prayer:—

Almighty God, who, by thy son Jesus Christ, didst ordain that where two or three are gathered together in thy service, thou art in the midst of them, grant, we beseech thee, Almighty God, that thy Church may serve thee in all godly peace and quietness; and grant, O Lord, that this foundation stone may rise into a goodly edifice, for the benefit of thy people, through Jesus Christ, our Lord.—Amen.

During the Governor's progress through the district of the Caledon River, houses of a substantial description, some completed, others in a very forward state, were continually to be seen. These have all been commenced since the conclusion of the arrangements entered into between his Excellency and the Griqua Chiefs in February last, and afford very sufficient evidence of the confidence established by the said measures among the Dutch population on the Caledon River, and which had been so wickedly interrupted.

It is gratifying to state, that the accounts received from the country north of the Orange River, up to the 1st instant, are of the most satisfactory character. All was perfectly tranquil, while the demeanour of the Boers, lately so turbulent, was everything that could be desired. Accounts from Bloem Fontein state, that the Commissioner for that district held a court on the 27th ultimo, at which 49 Boers were tried on a charge of being concerned in the recent outbreak. Of these, 37 were proved either to have been present, or to have aided in some way or other those who were. They were amerced accordingly, in penalties varying from Thirty Pounds to Thirty Shillings: every fine being paid, and every indication of contrition manifested for past misconduct. The total sum thus levied in this district, on this occasion, amounts to nearly £300—and would have been much larger, but for the moderation and consideration of the commission, at the head of which is Major Warden. Many of these misguided individuals are in circumstances of great poverty. They possess but few cattle, and obtain subsistence, like the natives, by hunting the wild animals of the country. The gratitude they express for the leniency shown them, it is difficult to describe. None of them are punished beyond what they are able to bear, and hence, while they are made sensible of their criminality and folly, they at the same time feel, that Sir Harry Smith, in crushing their proceedings in the manner he did, has conferred upon them, and upon the country at large, incalculable benefits. Equally favourable reports have been made from Winberg—where everything is progressing most satisfactorily; law, order, and security, taking place of violence, confusion, and danger. The accounts give the most decided assurances of the preservation of future tranquillity throughout that extensive country.—Graham's Town Journal, October 14.

WOOL MARKETS.

(From the Mark Lane Express, October 2.)

BRITISH WOOL.

LEEDS, SEPT. 29.—This branch of trade has been without any variation this week. Sales are limited to the immediate wants of the manufacturers, and prices are stationary.

LIVERPOOL, SEPT. 30.—A moderate business has been done in Scotch, but it is difficult to sell in quantity, although the market is well supplied, and offers a capital selection. Foreign has been very dull, although there is a little more looking round, which shows that the staplers are getting out of stock,

FOREIGN WOOL.

CITY, Monday.—The imports of Wool into London last week included 1871 bales from Sydney, 886 from Van Diemen's Land, 273 from Russia, and 205 from Germany.

We have, upon previous occasions entered fully into the statistics of the last Wool sales, but we may add now the views of another party in the trade:—

"Equal anxiety was shown for the result of these sales as the last, the arrivals being unusually large. Fortunately, arrangements were made to limit the quantity to be offered, which had a desirable effect. Except in well-selected and first-rate flocks, no improvement has taken place; these were about 1d. per lb. higher. We regret to find a great proportion of this year's clip very indifferently got up, and the character of many flocks sadly deteriorated. We much fear the ruinously low prices realised this season will prevent growers from paying that increased attention which is so necessary to preserve the estimation their wool has so long enjoyed from all parties. The attendance throughout was good, and a few foreign buyers were present."

LEEDS, September 29.—There has been a better demand for foreign wools during the past week at about previous rates. The inquiry for colonial wools is less satisfactory, the immence quantity recently brought into market having its effect in depressing this branch of the trade.

LOSS OF THE BRIG MARY, OF LIVERPOOL.

(From the Nautical Magazine.)

Extract of a letter from H.M. Schooner Bramble.

By Lieut. Commander C. H Yule.

At 5h. 30m. P.M., tacked off Double Island Point, and whilst standing out our masthead man observed a boat making for the land. Having no doubt the crew were in distress, I shortened sail and shaped a course to pick the boat up. There was rather a heavy sea running. We however succeeded in getting the people and a few damaged stores out of the boat, and then took her in tow.

The boat appeared to have belonged to the late brig Mary, of Liverpool, commanded by Mr. John Beel, who with his wife, mate, and seven seamen, were received on board the Bramble, after having been ten days in the boat.

It appears from the master's statement, that the Mary sailed from Sydney on the 19th November, 1847, bound to Manila with a small general cargo. Everything was going on prosperously until the 2nd December. In the forenoon of that day sights were taken, and at 11h. 30m. A.M. land was seen bearing north-east, about eight or ten leagues distant. At noon a meridian altitude of the sun was taken, ... vessel's position being then in ... 20·01 S., and longitude 153·05 E.; a course was then shaped north-west by north, up to 6h. P.M., with a fresh breeze from the eastward, which then fell light. The course was again altered to north-west, no land being then in sight. At 8h. P.M. having gone north-west ½ west, about ten leagues, the water being perfectly smooth and the wind light, the vessel grounded, but so imperceptibly as not to be felt, until it was found she had become stationary. The sails were then furled, the long boat got out, the stream anchor and hawser laid out astern, and every exertion made to get the vessel off until 2h. A.M. on the 3rd, at which time the wind had increased so much as to create a heavy sea, when the hawser parted, supposed to have been chafed by the coral. Mr. Beel and his crew finding that the utmost endeavours failed in saving the brig, they could afford to lose no time in making preparations for their personal safety. The long boat and jolly boat were then got in readiness as well as their distressed circumstances would permit. Having saved about three hundred weight of biscuit, a puncheon of water, the chronometer, ship's log, and papers, together with the mails and a few personal effects, they reluctantly abandoned the vessel at 4h. A.M., at which time she laboured so much as to lead them to fear the masts would roll over the side and destroy the boats. The master, his wife, and five seamen, embarked in the long boat, the mate and three seamen left in the jolly boat, when the two boats in company shaped a course for Moreton Bay, it being the nearest civilised part of Australia that Mr. Beel could hope to reach. During each night a small line was passed between the two boats, to prevent their parting company, in which manner they went on very well until the 6th, when the wind blew very strong with a heavy sea running, so much so that he was induced at about ten or eleven P.M., to try the effect of some oil being thrown overboard, but before the oil spread so far astern as the jolly boat, some heavy seas struck her, and turned her over two or three times; the long boat's sails were immediately lowered, and the small boat hauled up, when three out of the four men were saved, one unfortunate man being lost. Although the oil had a most beneficial effect on the surface of the water, the sea ran so heavily at one time as to fill the long boat nearly up to the thwarts, which required the united exertions of three men to bail out and keep the boat dry. The jolly boat, as a matter of course was abandoned, the three men saved from her being taken into the long boats, in which crowded state the perilous voyage was pursued; the wind continued strong with a heavy sea, but fortunately from a favourable direction: at about midnight on the 11th, breakers were seen both ahead and to leeward, but as any attempt to weather them under sailing or pulling would be utterly useless, the sails were lowered and recourse had again to oil. The boat passed through the breakers over the reef, she struck two or three times, by which she sustained so much damage as to require blankets to be nailed on, which to a certain extent succeeded; two men, however, were constantly employed to keep the boat clear of water by bailing. Nothing important occurred from this time, until the 13th, when land was observed, which proved to be Great Sandy Island, near Wide Bay; the Bramble was first seen by them at about one P.M., from which hour until about half-past four, every exertion was made to obtain assistance, which at last terminated successfully. I certainly felt rejoiced at having sailed that morning, which enabled me to render that assistance and protection these unfortunate people felt so much in need of. Mrs. Beel's sufferings must have been truly pitiable, having been wet through and exposed to the searching influence of the sun for ten days, and from constantly lying in the same position, she suffered much pain.

LISBON, SEPTEMBER 30.—I have just seen a letter from Oporto, in which the state of the wine trade in that city is represented as most deplorable. The farmers are glad to get fifty milreis a pipe for wine, which, but a few years back, would have fetched more than double that price; and even at this enormous sacrifice have the greatest difficulty in finding buyers. The merchants, unable to sell but at a loss, owing to the decline of the demand in the English markets, have ceased to add to their stock, and are beginning to dismiss their coopers and other labourers; the consequence of which is a great aggravation of the distress already existing among the lower orders, and a growing spirit of discontent, which is not at all unlikely to break out in open violence, unless something be promptly done to avert the evil. Several commercial firms of that city, foreign as well as native, are believed to be seriously embarrassed, and although by desperate efforts they may contrive to keep themselves up for a while, it is supposed they must soon fall, if some steps be not taken to save the wine trade of Oporto from utter ruin. These facts explain the motives of the Portuguese government in their recent proposal for a revision of the last treaty with England—a proposal which, as I mentioned in my last letter, Lord Palmerston has declined, except upon the basis that the reduction of duties on this side shall be such as to admit all our goods to a fair competition with the manufactures of Portugal in her own markets. This is a condition to which the Portuguese government is reluctant to agree, as it very naturally dreads the hullabaloo which the manufacturing-mania party would not fail to set up; but at the same time the distress of the wine interest (the great branch, beyond all dispute, of the national industry) is an evil of such magnitude, that it is difficult to guess on which horn of the dilemma it will prefer being stuck. Some decided course, however, must soon be taken: for it is impossible to reconcile the two conflicting interests, and things are rapidly coming to that pass that one must be thrown overboard to save the other.

THE REAL MARY OF GUELDRES.—Trinity College Church is now nearly demolished, leaving St. Giles's Church as the only one in Edinburgh the date of which is anterior to the Reformation. It will be remembered that about four months ago, before the signal was given for razing this interesting and ancient structure, antiquaries were very anxious that the foundations should be searched for the remains of the Royal foundress, Mary of Gueldres. Historians mention that she was buried in the north aisle, and accordingly, by order of the Commissioners of Woods and Forests, the flooring of the sacristy at the north-east corner of the building, as well as the north aisle was opened up, and after digging five or six feet downwards at the former place, a female skeleton was found in a state of comparatively good preservation, enclosed in an oak coffin, which had become fragile with age. No ornaments were found on the body thus exhumed, nothing proved the identity of the skeleton, and nothing pointed out the coffin to be that of the Queen; but from the contiguity of the spot to the site traditionally assigned as her resting-place, it was at once concluded, though it now appears rather hastily, that the remains of Mary of Gueldres had been disinterred. It was supposed, moreover, that the sanctity of the Royal rest had been disturbed about the period of the Reformation, the body rifled of whatever regal insignia had been deposited with it, and another coffin substituted for the original one. Considering the belief that the body of a queen of Scotland, who had died in 1463, had been discovered, it was very natural on the part of the authorities to think of reinterring her with her husband, James II. of Scotland, and it was withal a very interesting ceremony. The skeleton, which was discovered on the 23rd of May, was on the morning of the 15th of July conveyed to Holyrood Chapel, and there interred in the Royal vault, in presence of the Lord Provost, magistrates, council, &c. A coffin covered with coloured velvet, bearing an inscription stating the circumstances of the discovery, and containing the supposed remains of the Queen, was lowered into a vault at the south-east corner of the chapel. If nothing more could have been said, this would have been related as an interesting matter of history, awakening many historical associations of a still more stirring character. But the introduction of the ... of a genius hypothesis of the ... to the ground in ... such a manner as to give a ... shall ... to that which now seems, ... more than before, an occult profession. It has proved, we fear, a repetition of Sir Walter Scott's admirable fiction of the stone with "A.D.L.L.," rendered by Oldbuck "Agricola Domitit Lybens Lubens," while the site he conjectured as the very pre... of Agricola. The beggar Edie knew better, and the ardent antiquary's hope fell as the ... terious letters were interpreted "Aiken Drum's Lang Ladle!" One of the "Kail suppers of Fife" was thus taken for the great Roman general; the latitude of the mistake here will, ... perhaps, never be proved. But while exploding the one very plausible story, we must contrive to substantiate another on more tangible grounds. On Wednesday morning, about ten o'clock, while the workmen were digging under the site of the high altar, they came upon the end of a strong coffin, about four-and-a-half feet below the surface. The supervening material was carefully cleared away, when first appeared a surface of concrete. This being removed, a grave was found, lined with a frame-work of wood, in which was a coffin, apparently of oak, which in turn enclosed a leaden coffin, lined with wood, and suited to the form of the human body. A female skeleton was then discovered in an almost entire state, with joints perfectly knit together. The head was found to be cut through above the brow, as if a post mortem examination of the brain had been made, and the crown of the head being thus detached, had fallen aside a little from the rest of the skull. The spine had a lateral twist to the left side immediately below the shoulder, which, however might produce no visible deformity in the person. The skeleton was in much better preservation than the one previously found, indeed it had been shielded with almost Egyptian care. No insignia has been found to identify the body of the Queen to a certainty; but from the very position under the high altar, the great care taken to preserve her from the wasting of the grave, as if, even there, there was a royal prerogative of exemption, as well as from various other considerations, the conclusion that this is the royal foundress seems the only plausible one that can be arrived at. The utmost care not to disturb the joints was taken by Mr. Bryce, the architect, who conducted the exhuming of the body; and after it had been visited by a great number of persons in the course of the day, it was in the evening carried, in a wooden shell, to the Exchequer Chambers; and meanwhile the authorities have been informed of the circumstances of the discovery. It is believed by all who saw the skeleton, that it is the remains of the real Mary of Guildres.—Caledonian Mercury.

THE HEALTH OF THE JOURNEYMEN BAKERS.—In the Journal of Public Health for the present month there appears a very able article from the pen of Mr. William Guy, M.B., of Cambridge, on the health of the journeymen bakers of the metropolis. That useful class of workmen are equally hard worked and comparatively ill paid in all large towns, and their vocation, moreover, is even with short hours of labour unhealthy. Mr. Guy states that his attention was first drawn to the subject by accident, while prescribing for out-patients of King's College Hospital. One of them, to his astonishment, told him that his usual hours of work were from eleven at night to seven next evening, being twenty hours of work, with only four hours of rest. He (Mr. G.) found upon enquiry that the statement was true as respected many in the trade, and he supplies several cases with names, in detail, which certainly go to prove great, and even life-destroying, hardships amongst the journeymen bakers, calling aloud for legislative interference even more than did the worst practices of negro slavery. The shortening of life through the present system is indeed awful. From an authentic statistical table, it appears that even compared with tailors (whose trade is unwholesome) the bakers lose, one with another, a quarter of a year of life each year! There are few old or middle-aged men amongst them. Few of them enjoy robust health, and they are obnoxious to a variety of diseases to which other tradesmen are much less liable. They were peculiarly liable to disease of the chest, and spitting of blood—arising from long hours of work, great muscular efforts, exposure to the heat, the inhalation of particles of flour, &c. The author advocates the abolition of night-work, which is peculiarly injurious to health, and is by no means necessary, and might be done away by a mutual arrangement between the masters and workmen, without loss to either. In conclusion our author says:—"The great social and political question involved in this case of the journeymen bakers is one which now exacts a practical answer at the hands of the public and the legislature:—Is there to be free trade in health and life, as well as in food and clothing! Is the system of laissez faire to be not merely the general rule, subject in extreme cases, like all other general rules, to exception! Or is it to be a stringent, rigid principle, unalterable as the laws of the Medes and Persians? Much depends on the answer to this question; and the case of the journeymen bakers is one of the first in which that answer will be required."

SINGULAR DISCOVERY.—A correspondent of the Buffalo Express, writing under date of June 14, from Ontonagon, Lake Superior, says—"Mr. Knapp, of the Vulcan Mining Company, has lately made some very singular discoveries here in working one of the veins which he lately found. He worked into an old cave, which had been excavated centuries ago. This led the workmen to look for other works of the same sort, and they have found a number of sinks in the earth, which they have traced a long distance. By digging into those sinks they find them to have been made by the hand of man. It appears that the ancient miners went on a different principle from what they do at the present time. The greatest depth yet found in these holes is 30 feet, after getting down to a certain depth they drifted along the vein, making an open cut. These cuts have been filled nearly to a level by the accumulation of soil, and we find trees of the largest growth standing in this gutter; and also find that trees of a very large growth have grown up and died, and decayed many years since; in the same places there are now standing trees of over 300 years' growth. Last week they dug down into a new place, and about twelve feet below the surface found a mass of copper that must weigh from eight to ten tons. The mass was buried in ashes, and it appears they could not handle it, and had no means of cutting it, and probably kindled fire to melt or separate the rock from it, which might be done by heating and then dashing on cold water. This piece of copper is as pure and clean as a new cent; the upper surface has been pounded clear and smooth. It appears that this mass of copper was taken from the bottom of a shaft at the depth of about thirty feet. In sinking the sha is in every respect salubrious and convenient; indeed this is a freehold city property, inferior to none ever brought to the hammer, and, as such, worthy of the attention of those seeking a safe and profitable investment for money.
